IN THE LOBBY

"If there was a rich gold mine on the edge of an active volcano, the indomitable American spirit would devise some way to get that gold. In San Francisco that same spirit has been shown and today instead of reacting, as some predicted, it is stronger than ever." This is the reply Mr. I. Davis, a traveling man from San Francisco, gave to the query whether San Francisco was becoming normal again. "Today the people in San Francisco are depositing more money in bank than they are withdrawing, and they are going to stay there and share the prosperity which such a condition will make." Mr. Davis is lately from San Francisco. Switching the conversation here, as conversations will turn, he made enthusiastic remarks about the purity of our water. "I haven't felt clean since I left home until I got here."

James Brown, the insurance man, has a campaign medal which was moulded in 1860, and which was dug up on a farm five miles out on the Cairo road by Frank Wilcox last week. The medal seems to be made of gold or copper and has a hole in the rim for hanging on a chain. Possibly it might have been a watch charm. On one side in raised letters the name of John C. Breckinridge appears and on the opposite side the name of Joseph Lane. The former was the southern Democratic nominee for president and the latter nominee for vice-president in that year. The center of the medal held places for pictures but the pictures had been rotted away, leaving the black metal backing.

POOR MORTAR Caused Brick Buildings in Frisco to Fall Down.

San Francisco, June 20.—"I find," said Dr. T. Nakamura, professor of architecture of the Imperial University of Tokio, and one of the most distinguished members of the committee dispatched to this city by Japanese government to investigate the effects of trembler and fire, "that much of the damage to San Francisco from the earthquake was due to poor mortar and faulty construction, and the greater portion of the damage to the class A buildings by fire was the result of misguided use of hollow tiling and so-called fire-blocks, instead of concrete. It is an easy matter I have found, to design a building that will be not only earthquake proof, but practically fire proof."

"There has developed, as a result of the earthquake in San Francisco, great prejudice against brick buildings. However, they are largely employed in Japan, where earthquakes of greater severity than the one experienced in this city are not uncommon. The secret of their success, however, lies in the fact that good mortar is used. The mortar should either be composed of one part cement, to two parts of sand or of one part cement, three of lime and five of sand. The bricks should be thoroughly wet before being laid, and when the mortar has set under these conditions a wall becomes practically one stone."

Sixty Houses Are Swept. Prague, June 20.—A disastrous cloudburst occurred today over the communes of Szelean, Smychow and Konopischt, in Szavari river. Sixty houses were demolished, and dams, bridges and roads were swept away by the flood, fields were laid waste, trees were uprooted and much livestock perished. Several persons are missing.
